“ What can I say about Angelo...where to begin?? He was a kind soul, always willing to help anyone with anything. Whether is was taking me to get first Driver's License (40 years ago), to taking random drives with the family for fun and pretending we weren't lost (wink wink), to helping neighbors with certain home projects or volunteering for extra security detail at Woodhaven Lakes during peak times. He was always there to help in anyway possible. The dedication to his family was immeasurable, traveling hours back and forth to work to provide for his family. His love for music was beyond anyone's wildest imagination. You could mention any song, and he would go in to his vast collection of albums and pull it out of hat like a magician. I was always so surprised he could find it that quick! We always had lots of fun when we were together, his laugh was contagious, an attribute he was able to pass on to his children.:) While I'm terribly sad at your passing, I find peace knowing you are not suffering in pain anymore.
Rest easy my dear brother-in-law, I will fondly remember the years and years of memories we've shared.

God Bless,

Trish

“ You will be missed by friends and family. Your love and passion for your family, your sense of humor and love of music will be missed. You the only person I knew who loved to show me your Cheech and Chong album with the original rolling paper every time you had a chance. May God give your family peace knowing you in a better place in this difficult time. God speed.

“ If you know Angelo, you know his love for music. His love for music included all genres and when you were at his house you can be sure that he would be the house "DJ". He could spend hours changing the CD's and taking you through a musical adventure. He was passionate about blues, country and classic rock but I honestly could never tell which he preferred. We enjoyed many fun-filled times with Ang as he took us on his musical journey. He introduced me to country music and I became a big fan of Alabama and he played a big part in sharing his blues music with Al. Angelo was a good man, a good, kind person. He was willing to help others, he was willing to share his time with others, he worked hard for his family and he was loved by everyone. His passing is so sad and so sudden. It will take some time for the reality to set in. May God Bless him and keep in heaven with the rest of the Blues legends.

Rest Peacefully
