“ Dear Papa,

The day I married your son, you said "I can never have too many beautiful daughters!, and that is how you always treated me, like one of your own. You were all so welcoming to me and my two little girls and treated us like we had always belonged to you. Over the years, you were never too busy to say a kind word or give big hugs, or if I caught your eye across the yard at a family gathering, you'd give me a wink. As Ted and I began to have a family of our own, no one was happier than you to welcome the new babies. All of your grandchildren and great grandchildren were special and all made you quite proud!

Though our family gatherings could be boisterous affairs, you would find a quiet moment to say something personal to each of us and we all loved your stories! Lord how they made us laugh until we sometimes cried! My personal favorites were always about the escapades of the various kids, cars, goofy animals coming into the kitchen, and what ever happened on the farm. I also loved hearing about your child hood, your parents and siblings and what it was like growing up long ago and how you felt about things. I don't remember at what point I began to call you and Lu, Mom and Dad, but it just felt right.

I will always be grateful for the kindnesses you showed me, but more so, for the fine example you set in being a faithful and loving husband, a proud father and grandfather as well as a genuinely caring friend to all. What I really loved about you was that you were a man of faith and you weren't afraid to show anyone that you didn't just depend on yourself but turned to God and His wisdom. You always knew who you were, no matter what condition your condition was in.

I know I will see you again someday Papa, until then, I send you a big hug and a kiss. You will be missed so much, and you will always
