“ Russ Hayes was my godfather. When I was a boy, he seemed like a practical guy who wanted to teach what he knew and had time for no nonsense, and I remember thinking that my Dad seemed to have a lot of respect for him and that he was a good guy. That was 40 – 50 years ago. After going away to college and taking jobs out-of-state, I didn't see Russ very often, but I know that he influenced who I am today, both directly and through his influence on my Dad.

I saw Russ and Margaret after church just after this past Christmas and got to talk with him a bit and introduce him to my family. And, reflecting on our brief chat that day, I think that all of my boyhood impressions of him were pretty true ... but it's also more apparent to me now how much he cared for his family and for people like my Dad (and, through him, for me).

Russ Hayes was a good guy who made the world a better place and I will miss him.

“ I have so many good memories of Russ and appreciate all the things he taught me. I loved to stop to smell the sawdust, listen to polka music, get help with things I needed, and check his latest project. Our loss is heaven's gain.
