“ Sheila is a good person and a devoted mother. My heart aches with her passing. I send my thoughts and love to the rest of the family and friends. I am lucky to have known her and have her in my life. I am very proud to call her my friend, a dearly loved one and my sister. I love you always and forever Sheila.

“ Honestly, I think I'd like to have Jesus at a dinner party. First off, I'd love to see him do that whole "water to wine" thing. How good would THAT wine taste. And, of oscrue, I'd love to hear him say the grace before we eat. I'm not sure what I'd serve. I mean, what meal is gonna impress Him. And the conversation. I can think of a hundred questions right now that I'd like to ask. Not so much the deep questions; I want to know more about him as a guy. What's His favorite joke? What's the most beautiful thing He's ever seen?
What, other than the bible, does he think is the best book ever written? I'd ask Him where he'd want to live if he was just a regular Joe on the street. And if, I could, I think I'd like to just sit and listen to Him tell a story or two.
