“ Speaking from experience, I know words are inadequate but please except my condolences. Though we didn't see you guys much, I always enjoyed talking to both of you. He had a lot of people waiting for him on the other side, including Sue, so find comfort in the knowledge that he is in a better place without sickness and pain. You have my number, so please call anytime you need to talk. I hope you and your girls are doing OK considering the circumstances. Be prepared for the two questions I hate hearing. One is "How are you doing?" and the other is " Is there anything I can do for you?". Remember people don't know what to say and those are the only questions that sound correct. Take care and may peace find you and your family quickly.
